

SPEAKER INTRODUCTION

Have you ever wondered what it'd be like to be attacked by a vicious wild animal? Have you ever wondered what it would be like to look death square in the eye and to survive? Well, our speaker this evening has done both of these things.

The native African has an unforgettable story about the day he should have died. In surviving, he's exceeded everyone's expectations; including his own and today is living proof that "we really are the sum of all our choices."

His adventurous background includes leading extreme expeditions to some of the few uncharted places left on our planet, serving with honor in the military and learning to change a diaper with one hand.

In business he transitioned from leading his own Safari Consulting Company, to establishing a successful non-profit charity that's raised over a million dollars to date. He's consulted with Fortune 500 companies, been the subject of documentaries produced by the Discovery Channel, the BBC and National Geographic and today he runs his own business – coaching and speaking with people around the world.

Despite all of his achievements, he will tell you that his greatest pride lies in the day-to-day privilege of raising his three young children with his wife Carrie.

Ladies and Gentlemen, please welcome ... Paul Templer.
